

AUDITING COURSES

Students may register for a credit course and not receive credit; this procedure is called “auditing a course.” Students auditing a course may participate in class activities, but are not required to complete assignments or take examinations, and will not receive a grade.